Lacey Brooks

Lions To Hear Lacey Brooks Tuesday Night

Lacey Brooks of Paducah will be the featured speaker at the meeting of the Murray Lion's Club on Tuesday at 6:30 at the Woman's Club House.

Mr. Brooks is the manager of the Holiday Inn in Paducah.

Brooks' talk Tuesday is expected to be of particular interest since he was in the Navy in World War II and was on PT-162, the torpedo boat which rescued former President Kennedy from Vella Lavella Island after his boat, PT-109 had been sunk by the Japanese.

"The rescue of President Kennedy was the highlight of Brooks' war experiences, although his own PT boat was damaged by the Japanese earlier in the war and it was later sunk by mistake by an American B-25.

Brooks got to know President Kennedy well and kept in touch with him through the years. The assassination of Kennedy was particularly difficult for Brooks who said "It is hard to understand and to believe, knowing that he survived in World War II and then got killed in such a manner in this country."

All Lions are urged to be on hand tomorrow night at this meeting.

"Easter" To Be Shown At Auditorium

The Drama Department of Murray State College will present an arena production of August Strindberg's "Easter" in the college auditorium at 8:00 p.m. this Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

"Easter" has long been a favorite among Strindberg's plays, both in Sweden and in England. Although this modern mystery or morality play possesses none of the grim tragedy found in many of this playwright's dramas, it contains some of Strindberg's favorite themes, such as the law of recurrence — "everything happens again," and the doctrine of crime as punishment.

The mood of "Easter" was suggested by Haydn's "The Seven Words of the Redeemer" and its form by the three poignant days of the Christian calendar — Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter Eve. The Christian message is woven into that of nature herself, as spring comes to the frozen north, and man's pride cracks with the melting ice.

Tickets are now on sale during the day in the Student Union Building.

The pastor, and congregation, extends to one and all a cordial invitation to share these services.

Decisions Made By Court Today On Road Money

The Calloway County Fiscal Court met this morning and decided on how rural highway money in the county was to be spent for the next fiscal year. Next year $75,000 will be available for use in the county, double that allotted for the current fiscal year which ends on June 30.

Magistrates agreed that $7,000 was to be spent for gravel, $15,000 for grading, $13,500 for blacktop and mowing. The remaining $40,000 will be spent on construction of permanent drainage structures.

Jack Gray, First District Engineer, who was present at the meeting this morning said the distribution of funds was good and complimented the court on the use of a good portion of the funds for permanent type drainage structures. He told the court that temporary measures are the most costly and that by constructing some permanent type drainage structures, the maintenance would be cut to a minimum.

County Judge Miller told the court that whereas they had been spending money year after year in the same place, only to have succeeding rains wash out the improvement, a permanent type fixture would bring this to a halt.

O. K. Bennett with the First District office also, said that the move (Continued on Page 6)

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — United Auto Workers president Walter Reuther, opposing UAW endorsement of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy for the Democratic vice presidential nomination because President Johnson has not yet expressed his preference.

"We could do nothing more damaging to Bobby Kennedy than to get him involved in the race for vice president under the circumstances. Sometimes your friends are your worse enemies."

WASHINGTON — A survey by a private group, the non-partisan National Committee for an Effective Congress, explaining why it classifies eight Democratic Senators as "doubtful" on the question of imposing cloture on civil rights debate.

"The eight doubtful Democrats are Southern, Border and Western Senators whose traditional posture has been opposed to cloture. They are rated as doubtful (a) because they are known to be profoundly troubled by the gravity of the present crisis and anxious to do what they can to help, or (b) because they are known to be potentially responsive to an all-out effort at persuasion by President Johnson."

NEW YORK — Muhammed Ali, the Black Muslim name heavyweight champion Cassius Clay uses, commenting on a move by Chairman Emile Bruneau of the World Boxing Association to have his title lifted:

Bird's Fat High Octane "Fuel Tank"

By GAY PAULEY

UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Lester Varga can tell you about the birds and the bees — they're a major part of her florist business.

The Worthington, Ohio, woman sells the artificial birds and bees by the thousands to women who use them in floral bouquets, centerpieces, and smaller decor for coffee or occasional table. Miniature squirrels also are part of her animal world.

Mrs. Varga, 37, one of the exhibitors at the 47th annual International Flower Show underway at the Coliseum, calls her birds "people watchers," a trade name given by the manufacturer who has them made in Hong Kong.

From Live Specimens

The birds are copies from live specimens shipped to the crown colony and from a few feet away look like the real thing. They have cotton bodies molded to shape with tail and wing weathers the real thing.

This is Mrs. Varga's fifth year at the show and coming from a small suburb of Columbus, she laughed as she commented: "I have some of you city dwellers tell me they've never seen a robin."

Mrs. Varga said there's an increasing popularity for birds and she's by no means got a corner on the market. She displayed 26 varieties, most of the brightly colored birds — the western tanager, the eastern bluebird, the red-headed woodpecker, the cardinal, the painted bunting, the Baltimore Oriole.

Copy Bumble Bee

In the bee department, it's the bumble which has been copied life-size by deft use of pipe cleaners for the body, nylon for the wings. The squirrels, made in Japan, are about three inches high and made of ceramics except for the furry tails. Arrangers use them, she said, along with miniature artificial fruits set on coconut palm wood or other base.

Mrs. Varga, who has four sons ranging in age from 9 to 17, has been in flowers and related products for 20 years. Her husband is a salesman for horticultural products.

She stocked the birds and bees, she said, "because they're so lucrative."

The Eye Can Tip Off What You're Doing

By DELOS SMITH

UPI Science Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — By his eyes you can tell whether a man's mind is wool-gathering or concentrating on the problem before him. If he's using his brain his pupils will enlarge.

This tip on how to read the human being with a close look if not at a glance comes from laboratory experiments of two psychologists seeking to prove that the eyes can be an index of mental activity.

Their subjects were four men and a woman, all of "better than average intelligence" as demonstrated by their college degrees. They were asked to solve, in their heads, problems in arithmetic.

While they did so their heads were held firmly in a well-cushioned brace. This was so a mirror would steadily reflect their eyes into the lens of a motion picture camera.

The "frames" of the film were marked according to the stages of the problem-solving. Stage one was the command, "multiply 7 by 8." The next stage showed the eyes as the brain groped with that. The final stage was when the subject gave the answer.

Then came the next command and each succeeding command was progressively harder to obey. Anyone can multiply 7 by 8 but even a doctor of philosophy has to work his brain to multiply 16 by 22 without recourse to paper and pencil.

The film with the marked frames later was projected on a screen where the dilators of the pupils could be precisely measured. This showed that as the problem was considered the pupils enlarged and reached their largest diameter just before the answer was found.

And as the problems increased in difficulty so did the range of pupil enlarging, or, to put it another way, the harder the brain worked the more the pupils enlarged.

Drs. Eckhard H. Hess and James M. Polk of the University of Chicago reported these experimental results to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

BOTH LEGS GONE — Everett Crosby, 63, brother of Bing, looks cheery in Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, where he is recuperating from amputation of both legs because of a diabetic condition. Nurse Lorraine Mikita could help anyone look cheery. The operation took place Jan. 2. Crosby, business manager for Bing, is learning use of artificial legs.

Dominance Of Ferrari Is Challenged By Cobra

By JOHN G. WARNED
United Press International
SEBRING, Fla., (U.P.) — Down the broad runway where bombers once landed, around the drab barracks and the mailboxes and past the stunted palm trees the red cars roar.

They streak past the glistening warehouses, under the quivering bridges and by the hay bales, around and around, clouds of dust and fumes of smoking rubber in their wake.

In the burning sun they are the color of blood and in the night their gleaming exhausts spit gout of fire.

Every year for 12 hours the orange groves tremble with their angry howl and 50,000 people line the roads, bunching together in the pends, wondering if anything can ever catch these screaming scarlet beasts of Italy, the invincible Ferraris.

Receive Surprise
This year they got something of a surprise, for when the race ended in the chill night there were Ferris only in the first three places, rather than six as it was last year, and the Sebring Grand Touring class crown no longer belonged to the red cars.

The gallant blue Cobras from America, holding together for the first time in this cruel test of machines, took first, second and third in the big Grand Touring category — a class Ferrari has always won, even its prototype cars could not win the over-all victory.

But it is a measure of Ferrari's astounding grip on this sport that it is a minor upset for the red cars to take only the first three places over-all.

Puts It Simply
Umberto Maglioli of Italy, who with Ferrari test driver Mike Parkes drove the winning car Saturday, put it very simply in the winning circle.

"Our cars are perfection," Behind Parkes and Maglioli came Ludovico Scarfiotti and Nino Vaccarella, and behind them came John Surtees, who won here last year with Scarfiotti, and Lorenzo Bandini.

And behind them were the Cobras, pushing Parkes to a new record speed of 92.394 miles an hour for the 12 hours, and forcing Surtees to a new lap record of 100.537 m.p.h., breaking the century mark for the first time in competition here.

The Daytona Cobra coupe of Bob Holbert and Dave McDonald was fourth, with the AC Cobras of Bob Bondurant-Lew Spencer and Joe Schlesier-Phil Hill fifth and sixth.

Things Are Looking Up For Phillies; Could Win Flag

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of 20 dispatches on the 1964 prospects of the major league baseball teams.)

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor
CLEANWATER, Fla., (U.P.) — Things are looking up for the Philadelphia Phillies.

Manager Gene Mauch feels that given a break here and there the Phillies could win the National League pennant, ending a 14-year old drought.

The breaks he needs involve solving two problems — coming up with a third baseman and some left-handed relief pitching.

"If we do, and I think we will, watch out," Mauch warns. He directed his club to a fourth place finish last year — the first season since 1950 it has finished in the first division — with a total of 87 victories, only 12 less than the winning Los Angeles Dodgers.

Except for third base, a platooning problem in left field, and a bullpen problem his club is all set. It figures to miss the big bat of Don Demeter, but the two players they acquired for him, pitcher Jim Bunning and catcher Gus Triandos, may take up the slack.

Balanced Catching
Triandos will catch when the opposition uses southpaw pitchers; Bunning when right-handers are against the Phillies.

Bunning, only 12-13 with the Detroit Tigers last year, will be one of the starting pitchers along with Dennis Bennett (9-5), Chris Short (9-12), Art Mahaffey (7-10) and sophomore Ray Culp (14-11). Throw in the veteran Cal McLish (13-11) for spot starts, and it gives Mauch plenty of starting pitching potential. Bennett and Short are left-handers, the other four righties.

Right-handers, led by workhorse Jack Baldschun (11-7) dominate the bullpen. The others are Ryne Duran (5-2) and Johnny Kilgus (5-6). Dallas Green (7-5), also a righty, probably will be the long man in relief and draw occasional starting assignments, especially against the

The questions are simple, but they are based on facts and if you know those facts, you are all right.

Well, the plain unvarnished truth is, there are thirty questions and if you miss more than six of them, you are out. We missed exactly six.

We hadn't counted on such questions as to how long the reaction time of a driver is, etc. We just didn't know.

Now here is the moral of the story: First, check your driver's license and make sure it is up to date.

Second, if it is out of date, go take the test and get another one.

Third, BEFORE you take the test, read the manual which is available from the officer in charge.

Betty Scott has a wonderful way of getting the best from her art students at Murray High.

Go by Scott Drug and look in their window and you'll get an idea what her students can do.

Carol Rolfe sculpted a head which is a professional job.

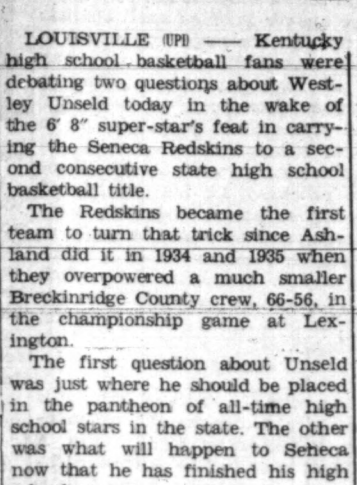

Joe Ward has a painting in the window which he can be proud of.

Several examples of work in ceramics, weaving, drawing are on display.

Cathy Converse has a difficult piece of work on display which took time and effort, but which turned out very well. It is a mosaic.

If a boy or girl has any talent at all, Betty seems to be able to bring it out, and even if they don't have talent, they achieve a large measure of appreciation for this field.

Westley Unseld Stands Out As Top Man In Tournament And Mainstay Of Seneca Team

"AUTOMATION" DEAD — Dr. Norbert Wiener, 69, known as the "Father of Automation" by virtue of his pioneer work in cybernetics, died in Stockholm, Sweden, while on a lecture tour. He had retired in 1960 as a Massachusetts Institute of Technology mathematics professor after 42 years there.

LOUISVILLE (U.P.) — Kentucky high school basketball fans were debating two questions about Westley Unseld today in the wake of the 6' 8" super-star's feat in carrying the Seneca Redskins to a second consecutive state high school basketball title.

The Redskins became the first team to turn that trick since Ashland did it in 1934 and 1935 when they overpowered a much smaller Breckinridge County crew, 66-56, in the championship game at Lexington.

The first question about Unseld was just where he should be placed in the pantheon of all-time high school stars in the state. The other was what will happen to Seneca now that he has finished his high school career.

One clue to Unseld's true stature, perhaps, is that he is the only member of the Seneca team to be named to the all-tournament team. It is rare indeed that the champion does not place at least two of its members, and sometimes three, on the all-tournament team.

Nine Others on Team
Other members of the all-tournament team are Len Poole and Butch Beard of the runner-up Breckinridge County Bears; Jim Rose and Joe Davis of the Hazard team that Seneca beat in the semifinals; Greg Smith of Caldwell County; Jim LeMaster of Bourbon County; Norm Weaver of Allen County; George Stone of Covington Grant, and George Wilson of Lexington.

Lose Two Standouts
Seneca, which in five years of competition has won two state titles and under coach Bob Mulcahy has won 129 games while losing only 14, loses both Unseld and 6' 9" forward Jim Garrison — who some observers think can develop into an outstanding college player.

The Redskins will return with Larry Trunnell, Jesse Kirk, Dave Pflug, and Pratt Lyons, the latter, the team's "sixth man."

The Redskins won't have Unseld, but as Mulcahy said, "Neither will anybody else."

The state champs paraded through downtown Louisville on a fire truck Sunday and were cheered by a crowd of 2,000 in their own gym as they turned over the huge silver trophy to their school.

Breckinridge County's giddy little Bears also received ovations from a crowd of 1,300 when they returned home Sunday with the trophy.

Never Gave Up
With their only player 6' 3" tall — the 6' 3" Beard — Unseld and able to play only sporadically, the buzzsaw Bears still beat Seneca all the way and actually had the score tied at 21-21 in the first half.

In the second half they closed the gap to 33-31, and made one more bid at 47-44 before Lyons scored once and Unseld twice in quick succession to lock up the decision.

Beard was given medication before the game for badly bruised legs, and suffered a reaction from the treatment that left him weak and woozy. He did not appear on the floor until just before the game started, and sat out much of the contest.

Unseld scored 29 points in the contest, and grabbed 21 rebounds — four more than Breckinridge County managed altogether.

But the Bears won a standing ovation from the crowd of 12,000 in Memorial Coliseum — an ovation in which the champion Redskins joined.

THE MIGHTY MIDGET WANT ADS WORK

Trade Should Be Learned By Many

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

A high school education for many students should involve the learning of a trade. They have no desire to go to college. They will become part of the labor force when they graduate.

In order that these individuals become gainfully employed, they need specific skills. This involves training which is a responsibility of the school. If a particular high school cannot offer a full variety of vocational courses, other arrangements can be made. Students might be permitted to attend another high school in the district which does offer the courses they want. If this is not possible, some school boards will arrange to pay tuition in a neighboring district which offers the courses.

Most present day emphasis is upon college preparation. High schools are being pressured to improve their courses for college bound students. On a national basis, college students still represent a minority of high school graduates.

Fulfill Responsibility
It is therefore most important to make sure that a high school fulfills its responsibilities to those who end their formal education upon graduation.

The problem of offering a large variety of courses in a high school exists whenever the district is small. The larger the high school, the more different courses which can be offered. Cities with many schools usually are able to have each with one or more specialties. Small suburban districts may have only one high school which is not very large. One answer in these small districts is to form one large high school to serve several districts. Another way is to have exchange agreements between districts.

A student who doesn't intend to go to college still needs some academic and cultural courses. These are necessary for his development as a good citizen, interesting companion, and successful employee. Vocational training is important in developing skills which will make the individual valuable for his own as well as the national economy.

Closely Related

The area of vocational training is closely related to the drop out problem facing many high schools. A student must feel he is accomplishing some important purpose if he is going to stay in school. Heavy emphasis upon academic subjects is not going to satisfy the needs of youngsters who are preparing to earn a living. They are usually interested in learning skills which will improve their desirability in the labor market. Satisfying these needs will help keep them in school.

Vocational training is important to the individual as well as the nation. School programs and offerings should be designed to meet the needs of all types of students. This includes those who terminate their education upon graduation and those who are college bound.

Dear Abby . . .

But Not Biology!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I beg to inform you that the female parakeet does not talk. Only the male can be taught to talk. It is the same with canaries. The female canary will give out with an occasional chirp, but only the male canary will burst forth into song. If it will make you feel better, Abby, the female of the feathered family is more beautiful, feathery and is strictly ornamental. But let's be honest, she contributes nothing and is strictly ornamental.

KNOWS HIS BIRDS
DEAR ABBY: Is that so? The rooster does the crowing, but it's the hen which lays the eggs.

DEAR ABBY: I recently visited a young dentist who recommended to me by a friend. When I got into the chair, rock and roll music started playing right in my ear. I started playing right in my ear. I am a maestro, 58, and I never listen to that kind of music at home as it is nerve-racking. I enjoy soft, semi-classical music, however. I detest

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been divorced from his first wife for twelve years, and married to me for ten. She has never remarried. She still calls him on the phone, but never at home, only at his office. I know this because I have been at his office when she's called. She claims she wants nothing from him, and only calls to give him news and health reports on their daughter. This daughter is 24, married, in good health, and is able to take care of herself. I don't trust this "son." What do you think she really wants? I am just about ready to let her have it. (Right between the eyes!) But I don't think that is what she has in mind, do you?

JOHN'S OTHER WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Hardly. But she could probably use something between the ears. Your husband can't help it if she calls him, but you might ask him how often she calls. If she overdoes it, it is up to HIM to straighten her out.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DOUBLE A": Let your 22-year old son find his own job. You are protecting him from the same hard knocks that made a man out of you.

Get it off your chest. For a personal, unpublished reply, write to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

In effect, our modern industrial society is working night and day to fill the nation's hospitals with mental health cases. And time is running out on what can be done about it.

His attack on "visual pollution" is in an article he prepared for the firm's "Design Sense," a publication which goes to 15,000 management and marketing executives.

Prior of Progress
Lippincott began his career as an engineer, studied architecture, taught at New York's Pratt Institute for seven years, turned industrial design editor, and then became a management consultant. In 1946, with Walter P. Margulies, he founded Lippincott and Margulies, which today calls itself the world's largest firm of marketing, consulting, and industrial designers. Lippincott is board chairman.

The designer says that "ugliness and squalor in public places have been accepted as the price of economic progress for far too many years."

The solution? Lippincott believes that if there is one, "I'm convinced it will be found only under the auspices of federal government planning and as a result of major legislation by the Congress."

Although Mr. Martin has never tamed tree swallows, he and the youngsters he knows have fun with this independent species. They save white feathers for the swallows to use when building nests. The children hold the feathers over their heads and the birds swoop down and fly off with them.

Breezy Day Best
A breezy day is best for getting a swallow to take a feather from your hand, advises the author, because the movement of the feather will attract him.

Mr. Martin, who has illustrated the book with his own photographs and drawings, includes one, reproduced here, showing a swallow trying to enter his nest with two feathers tied together.

For the dedicated bird-watcher, still another book of note is a revised edition of Chester A. Reed's pocket "Bird Guide: Land Birds East of the Rockies" (Doubleday). It includes 300 full-color illustrations of 222 species and features data on each bird's song, nest and range.

It's for the Birds

Several New Books To Interest Watchers

Small bottles make good hummingbird feeders.

A NOVEL bird feeder is shown in this illustration by Jeanne Bendick for a children's book by Glenn O. Blough.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

"BIRD-WATCHING?" said one of our weekend guests last summer as he reached for the binoculars. "What a silly pastime!"

There was a moment or two of silence while he focused the glasses.

What Is It?
"Say, there's an odd-looking bird," he remarked with interest. "Where's that bird book of yours?"

Like many another, he was hooked—and so were our binoculars and bird book, for the rest of his stay.

That marvelous sense of discovery is one of the things that makes bird-watching so fascinating. It's a hobby you can pursue anywhere and any time; one that opens your eyes to the wonderful world of nature that's all around us.

Many Bird Books
Because it's a hobby that's drawing ever-increasing fans, bird books are growing in popularity. Among the many available are several newcomers worth noting.

"Bird Watchers and Bird Feeders" by Glenn O. Blough (Whitsey House) is designed to interest children in this absorbing pursuit. It's filled with illustrations by Jeanne Bendick, one of which is reproduced here, that show how to make and stock feeders—and also depict bird species commonly seen in many parts of the country.

Record Book
To promote a child's interest further, Dr. Blough suggests keeping a Bird Record Book that notes various birds seen, their habits and their songs. He also suggests projects children can pursue all through the year.

One of the most absorbing books to come along for bird-watchers of any age is Alfred G. Martin's "Hand-Taming Wild Birds At the Feeder" (Wheelwright).

It's an enchanting how-to volume filled with anecdotes and peopled with lovable bird characters who were personal friends of the author.

Fine Feathered Friends
There was, for example, Chipper, a hairy woodpecker who pecked at the kitchen window when he wanted some sweet and who enjoyed playing hide-and-seek with the author.

Kitty, a catbird, had another trick. She wouldn't eat food from the feeder or from the author's hand but preferred to have raisins tossed to her so she could catch them in mid-air.

Two Children and a small feathered friend pose with Alfred G. Martin, author of delightful book on taming birds.

Mr. Martin introduces his fine feathered friends to readers in a warm and wonderful way. For those who want to meet and know them, too, he tells how to hand-tame a variety of birds, including the chickadee, nuthatch, pine grosbeak, purple finch, red-

America Suffers From "See-Sickness"

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — America suffers from a vast attack of "see sickness" because of the un-aesthetic constantly before its eyes, charges one of the nation's leading industrial designers.

J. Gordon Lippincott speaks out against the "garish billboards and the proliferation of neon signs, posters, pennants" which are part of the American scene.

He also charges that most suburbs are "visually-monotonous" and that the vast majority of new buildings in America are "vision-twisters."

"Individually and collectively," says Lippincott, "these things represent an American phenomenon best described as 'visual pollution.' Call it 'see sickness' if you prefer, for truly most of what can be seen from city streets and highways can and does make people psychologically sick."

In effect, our modern industrial society is working night and day to fill the nation's hospitals with mental health cases. And time is running out on what can be done about it.

NANCY

As Ingrid started for the door, Zeke called to her, "Miss Randall." At the "Miss," her eyes lighted. At last, here was someone who knew and respected her age. And he was smiling. He was a living doll. She would write Mr. Hoover when this was over and tell him.

Zeke said, "As a special favor, would you keep your phone conversations brief? We're running our own phone in here later but right now we have to depend on this one."

"Why, of course, Mr. Kelo. I'll do anything you want me to."

"And no dates here tonight, please. No boy friends."

She shot Patti a glance. "I'm not permitted," boy friends on a Tuesday night due to certain customs in this family that date back to medieval times. The thinking in this family—

She never finished. An explosion shook the room, set the pictures on the wall to trembling and the cosmetics on the make-up table to clinking.

Zeke tensed as his thoughts scrambled to place and identify the sound. Ingrid did it for him. "It's nothing, Mike set off another rocket. He's going to blow up the whole neighborhood someday but we must make sacrifices for science."

"I want to speak to him," Zeke said sharply. "Call him in, will you?"

Ingrid disappeared and soon returned with Mike. Zeke asked his co-operation. Would he mind foregoing rocket research tonight?

"I don't want D.C.'s nerves shattered," Zeke explained, returning to the bedroom. He noted that for some inexplicable reason D.C. did not seem particularly disturbed. He was still washing away on that tall. He should have taken to the suburban depths when the rocket went off. But he hadn't. He just sat there calmly and washed that long, tall. This laundry bit, pursued over an extended period, was beginning to bother Zeke.

Zeke continued, "It's important that we don't do anything to upset his nerves tonight."

"He hasn't got any," Mike countered.

Ingrid nodded. "You don't get that kind for two dollars at the SPCA."

pastor of hers, and who also held the funeral of her husband, the late Lee Clark who passed away October 3, 1960. Rev. Archer and Rev. Culpender assisted in the funeral rites also.

Rev. Owen paid a beautiful tribute to her life and Christian character. He placed special emphasis on this passage which was so applicable to her life, "I've fought a good fight, I've finished the course, henceforth is laid up for me the crown of life." He also quoted many appropriate lines of literary verse from different poetical selections. One favorite was "Away" which reads in part only "I can't say, and I will not say that she is dead. She is just away."

Rev. Archer read Psalm 23 which was always a source of comfort, and was the last scriptural chapter read to her by her only daughter, Modest, prior to her going away. Rev. Culpender's prayer was indeed comforting. The organ selections presented by Emma Douglas and the vocal solo by Mrs. Ann Doran, "Beyond the Sunset," were so typical of her love and appreciation for music. The many floral contributions so well expressed another great love of her life—a beautiful flower garden.

May Myers (Clark) was born February 20, 1886, the daughter of J. W. and Mary Eliza Lawrence Myers. Her entire youth was spent in the Sinking Springs vicinity where she early in life united with the Baptist church (joining the Methodist church in later years). She was a member of a family of eight children, namely: Minnie, Robert, Telus, Gary, Opie, Nix, and Isola. She was united in marriage to Lee Clark on November 4, 1903 at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Myers, Route Four (Sinking Springs). Rev. C. C. Bell performed the ceremony in the presence of immediate families and friends. After marriage, they moved to a farm near Lynn Grove where they lived the entire 58 years of life together. During these years they built three different homes on the same farm, with the last one being constructed in 1941.

To the happy union were born a son, Bryan C. (deceased) and a daughter, Modest, who is the wife of Burton Jeffrey, Calloway County School superintendent since 1950. Both Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey have spent their lives thus far in the field of educational endeavors.

Both were affiliated with Lynn Grove High School for 23 years. Since Mrs. Jeffrey has been school superintendent, Mrs. Jeffrey has continued in the teaching fields, having taught one year at New Concord, nine years at Murray High School and the last five years at the new Calloway County High School where the $50,000 dollar gymnasium was named the Burton Jeffrey gym by the Calloway County Board of Education at its dedication exercises. This was an honor, a tribute, and a distinction paid to Mr. Jeffrey for his untiring efforts and service rendered in the educational program of Calloway County High Schools as well as his many years of basketball coaching, teaching, and school administration.

taken by the court was a step in the right direction.

The court had held one meeting on this river highway money and how it was to be spent but could arrive at no decision. The meeting this morning went swiftly and figures were arrived at in a short time.

Judge Miller also introduced Gene Hatfield, an engineer with a private firm, who was hired by the court to work with the county in making applications to the Federal Government under the disaster program. Mr. Hatfield's employment will be of a temporary nature and his primary job will be to aid the county in getting applications through on roads and bridges damaged in recent floods.

President Johnson has declared Calloway as one of the disaster counties and under this program the county can receive aid under the Civil Defense act.

Federal aid under the disaster program is not for the unmaking of a road system, but to get the system back into operating condition following a disaster.

Mr. Hatfield will attend a highway meeting in Owensboro Wednesday for counties in this area who plan to make applications under the disaster program and will report back his findings to the court.

A survey has been made of flood damage in Calloway County by a First District engineer which will be used as a basis for Calloway County applications for aid under the program.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Clark died at the age of 78 years. Their only immediate survivor is a daughter, Mrs. Edna Jeffrey of Murray. Mrs. Clark is survived by one sister, Mrs. A. H. Webb of St. Louis, Mo., and two brothers, Gary and Telus Myers of Calloway County, and Nix Myers of Carroll, Texas. Mr. Clark is survived by one brother, M. O. Clark of Murray, and two sisters, Mrs. A. D. Stark of Route Four and Mrs. O. C. Wether of Murray.

Supplying Of River Traffic Is Big Job

By WILLIAM L. VAUGHN

United Press International MEMPHIS (AP)—The voice crackled loudly through the radio-telephone receiver: "One hundred half-gallons sweet milk... and I need 100 foot of half inch manila. I'm south-bound... be in Memphis at 8 a.m."

"Fine sir," said a brunette secretary. Outside her office the never-ending river traffic churned slowly up the Mississippi. The office rocked gently on the waves.

The scene was Frankie and Johnnie's boat store, a multi-million dollar business housed in a 35-year old paddlewheeler, the Mac Rod, which is moored within the shadow of the Memphis-Arkansas bridge on the river. It is also an excursion boat in the 1930s.

From the Mac Rod groceries are ferried out to feed the army of towboat crewmen who work the Mississippi. More than one million gallons of diesel fuel are gulped by towboats each day from fuel barges operated by the union store.

Delivery in Motion

At first glance, there's little difference between the store and a conventional service station or grocery, except perhaps the location. But convention ends when brother Frankie and Johnnie Garavelli deliver their goods... for all deliveries are made in mid-stream at a speed of about 10 miles an hour.

The secretary, Mrs. Katherine Crump, had been taking a supply order from Capt. Harry Lewis of Paducah Ky. skipper of the towboat "Girle Knight." The vessel was about 100 miles above Memphis en route to New Orleans with a line of coal barges. About 15 men were aboard.

When the Girle Knight is about 10 miles above Memphis it will be met by one of Frankie and Johnnie's three tugboats pushing a fuel barge. While the barge is pumping diesel fuel at the rate of 55,000 gallons per hour, crewmen of the tug will be unloading groceries and supplies on the decks of the Girle Knight.

In an hour, the tug will cast off and the Girle Knight will slide past Memphis without so much as a pause.

Big Money Saver

Why all the bother about mid-stream antics? A matter of money: Had the Girle Knight been forced to refuel at a Memphis dock, it would mean four hours to tie up the barge, pull into a refueling wharf and then reload. The total cost, considering time, investment in the tow and wages for idle crewmen, might hit $1,300.

Aircrews have been doing it for years. But in the early days after World War II, when the Garavelli brothers decided to branch out from the family boat provisioning firm, fashioned featherbed.

A typical grocery order might include 100 half-gallons of milk, 24 packages of frozen French fries, 24 loaves of bread 12 packages of cookies, 15 half-gallons of ice cream, 24 pounds of chickens, dressed for cooking, huge hams, beef and fruits.

A two-week grocery bill for a hungry river crew of 15 will run $550. Most orders usually include a few extra items for individual crewmen, ranging from a new set of prescription eye-glasses to an old-
